VITAL FEATURES

REALISTIC CHILDREN'S BOOKS..... 4

Our satire of those basic definitions in children's books (i.e. "A hole is to dig!") will convince you "A MAD is to throw out!"

TV FOR LATE, LATE AUDIENCES..... 14

The best TV can be seen from 2 to 6 A.M., mainly because there's nothing on! However, here's what can be done to fix that!

A MAD LOOK AT THE BEACH..... 18

You won't starve on the beach because of "sand-which-is" there, but you can die laughing because of clods which are there.

CAREER-DESIGNED EUROPE TOURS... 24

Travel becomes narrowing instead of broadening as these special MAD tours lead American tourists up and down their own alleys.

TV COMMERCIALS WITH SUSPENSE... 28

Suspense can be painful. TV commercials can also be painful. Imagine how painful "TV Commercials with Suspense" could be!

MEDICAL ILLUSTRATED MAGAZINE... 31

We hope that our version of a magazine published solely for Doctors will even the score by making them sick—for a change.

KARATE..... 39

It kills us to see folks going wild over Japanese imports! But Karate's an import we're wild over—because it kills folks!

THE JACK KENNEDY SHOW..... 45

MAD suggests that Pres. Kennedy adopt a familiar show format to keep the Trendex of his TV Press Conferences up to "Paar."

SAVE 25c!

Ignore this ad for a full-color picture of Alfred E. Neuman, 'cause that's what it costs. Mail money to—MAD, Dept. "What—Color?" 850 Third Ave., N.Y.C. 22.

A black and white illustration of a mailbox. The mailbox is mounted on a wooden post and has the words "MAD EDITOR?" written on its side. The mailbox door is open, and inside, instead of mail, there is a large, lit bomb with a lit fuse. Sparks are coming out of the top of the mailbox.

RABBIT PUNCH

MAD's Alfred E. Neuman has become so well known that one reader recently wrote us from Los Angeles and placed nothing on the outer envelope except Alfred, which he had clipped from the magazine. The letter was promptly delivered to MAD's New York office, and, most delightful of all, no one with the post office in either Los Angeles or New York spoiled it by writing the publication's name, address, city or state anywhere on it while it was being processed and delivered. It arrived exactly as it was sent: with the only clue as to its destination being the sophisticated MAD kid himself. So there, "Playboy"!—Ed.

I certainly can see why your latest issue was called the "April Showers" special. It was a downpour of satire—a deluge of gags—a veritable clod-burst.

K. O'Neil
Silver Spring, Md.

My husband and I have what we call required reading programs, and MAD is included in the periodicals we cover religiously, some of them being The Wall Street Journal, Saturday Review, etc. We truly think MAD has as much to say about the American scene as Newsweek.

Mrs. Norman Larabee
Seattle, Washington

Only "Newsweek" says it much funnier!

[illegible]

You guys must feel important, now! I read in the March issue of "Popular Science" that an electronic computer called the Michigan Algorithm Decoder (initials: M.A.D.) prints a typewriter picture like the one attached of your friend, including his motto, when the machine is fed the wrong information. That seems logical, doesn't it?

Here in Italy, we admire the work of MAD very much; there are very good artists; the usual gang of idiots is fantastica. The most hard thing in the world is to be able to make laugh people now. I think the MAD influence my own work very much. What you think?

FAMILY ENTERTAINMENT

We all really enjoy the results of the effort which obviously goes into each issue of your wonderful MAD Magazine. Humor is sorely needed these days. I also enjoy the pleasure my children get from MAD. It's unusual to see humor and satire nowadays expressed in a fashion such as yours, which allows the entire family to enjoy it.

LEARNS A LESSON

I really was shocked when I took a copy of your magazine to school with me, and my English teacher, Miss Wyma, told the whole class she thought it was a very, very good magazine. I've been reading MAD all these years because I thought it was a rotten magazine, and frankly I'm disappointed to learn that it isn't.

GOING THROUGH A PHRASE DEPT.

Children's books are enjoying unprecedented popularity these days. Mainly because they're being bought by parents! However, we've got a sneaking suspicion that the kids aren't too thrilled with them. Let's face it: "A Hole is to dig," "A Pony is to ride on," and "A Mommy is to love you" is just so much saccharine and slush. Today's kid will someday be reading Hemingway and Faulkner — not books by ladies with three names. He wants truth . . . and realism — not goody-goody namby-pambyisms. He wants books that describe the "real" world around him. Something like the following sample...MAD's own version of...

A Mother is to hide behind when Daddy gets mad at you.

A Father is to give you long lectures about how wonderful he was when he was a boy.

A Grandmother is to spoil you.

A Tantrum is to throw in front of a Grandmother so she'll holler at your mother and then spoil you more.

A Toy Store is to stop in front of when Grandpa takes you for a walk.

Tears are to get your own way.

N'S BOOK children

A Brother is to blame things on.

A Sister is to blame things on you.

An Uncle is when he pinches your cheek, you're not allowed to pinch back.

An Aunt is to give you clothes for your birthday, instead of toys.

A Teacher is to lose patience with you.

Open School Week is when your crabby teacher smiles a lot.

A Cold is to stay home from school with.

Medicine is to yecch after taking.

A Pet is to scream and holler until they get you one; but they never get you a monkey.

Goldfish are to overfeed.

A Bird is to bury.

Table Manners are for when there are guests for dinner.

Dinner is to push around on the plate until it's such a mess that even your mother doesn't want you to eat it.

Water is to ask for just when they think you've fallen asleep.

A Cookie is what you don't get because it will spoil your dinner, or because you didn't finish your dinner.

Mother's Day is for Daddy to buy Mommy a present and say it's from you.

Camp is to write home for money from.

A Museum is where parents take you instead of someplace good.

A Baby Sitter is a girl who gets 75¢ an hour to watch your TV set.

Homework is to do if there's nothing on television.

Gloves are to lose one of.

A Piano is to practice loud on when your mother is trying to make a phone call so she'll tell you to go out and play.

An Allowance is to get an advance on.

Other kid's toys are to share.

Mud is to track into the house.

A Movie Theater is to make noise in and put your feet on the seats until the matron comes.

Love Scenes are to giggle at.

A Girl is to pull her hair.

A Kiss is to wipe off.

Revolutionary 3-way plan for relief of COLD WAR MISERIES AND POPULATION CONGESTION

HELPS DRAIN ALL 8 PRESSURE AREAS (critical causes of Communist infection)

ASSISTANCE Decongestion Money, working through the International Monetary Fund, brings dramatic relief from Cold War miseries, starvation allergies, and overpopulation congestion with its painful pressures.

ASSISTANCE, amazing diplomatic achievement, contains (1) The scientific decongestion most prescribed by leading economists. In minutes, it reaches into affected areas — quickly shrinks swollen recessions — promotes recovery — restores free enterprise. (2) An exclusive Anti-Communism ingredient to block Dictatorship often associated with internal strife. (3) Prosperity to help build a country's resistance to Communist infection. NOTE: Today's U.S. ASSISTANCE is being widely imitated by you-know-who. But the fact remains . . . the exclusive American ASSISTANCE formula cannot be duplicated!

It's midnight in Alcatraz, 3 AM in Sing-Sing and 2 AM here in Chicago! The show is "Crime Time", and this is your friendly fink, Big Mike Muldoon, with another two hours of underworld news, weather, and music ... plus the latest police bulletins ...

And now for the news! The Shriners are holding their annual convention at the Sturdley-Hilton, starting tomorrow! Most of the members have already checked in, so it ought to be easy pickings for you jewelry boys! House Detective Lewis Eskin will close his eyes for 15% of the take. Just tell him Big Mike sent you!

Here's the weather outlook! A cold front is moving down out of Detroit, along with three payroll shipments in armored cars, and should reach here by 5 AM. So if you're planning the heist, better dig out that old windbreaker!

And now a word from our sponsor ...

FOR LATE-STUDYING STUDENTS ...

The makers of "Quik-Kram Undetectable Crib Sheets" present the award-winning late-night campus program, "Meet The Prof". Tonight, Professor C. B. Sfortz will face our panel of experts, and answer questions about his exam in Political Science I, to be given tomorrow morning in Room 303, Finster Hall.

Our panel tonight includes Biff Smeed, varsity fullback, who has taken Professor Sfortz's course seven times ... Cynthia Vavoom, campus beauty queen, who has ruined the careers of nine full professors and one department head, and Chester Rifkin, author of the best-seller, "How To Flunk Without You Even Half-Try" ...

And now, let's start the questioning with Biff Smeed

Tell me, Prof., how do yuh go about choosin' de questions you ast on yer exams?

In the usual way! My questions are based on material which was never assigned or discussed in class, and cannot be found in the textbook. In this way, there can be no chance of any student attaining a passing grade through normal study!

FOR FIREMEN...

Hi, there Firefighters! It's 4 AM, and time for another session of "Find The Fire"! Right now, while I'm talking, our producer is starting a fire somewhere in New York City! The first fireman to phone in the correct location of that fire wins $1000 for every man in his station house!

Remember! You do not have to put out the fire to win the prize! Last night, fireman Stan Freebish correctly identified the Empire State Building as the location of our contest blaze, and then proceeded to put it out. This wasn't necessary!

Here is tonight's first clue! The fire has been started on the 20th floor of a building between 40th and 50th Streets... and the first call is coming in right now! Hello! — It's from Station House No. 16! — No, Chief! Our fire is not at the United Nations! Somebody else must have started that one! Thanks, anyway!

FOR DRUNKS...

Hi, there, Alkies! Time to lay down them broken beer bottles, take a break in that drunken brawl, and soak up another 60-minute "shot" of your favorite after-hours Television show... "RUMMY'S REQUEST"!

Our first number is dedicated to Izzy, Moe, Floyd, Shifty and the rest of the gang now being arrested for disorderly conduct down at Eddie's Tavern! Here's Maxine, Laverne and Patty Lush — to sing that ever popular favorite: "Smoother Than Schenley's"!

*Smoother than Schenley's
Are you;
Richer than Seagram's
Are you;
You treat me nice
Like a Carstairs on ice
Or a Scotch — or two!*

*Choicer than Calvert's
Are you;
Drier than Gilbey's
Are you;
You make me glow
Like a fifth of Old Crow
The whole night through...*

FOR NEW PARENTS...

Hello there, all you volunteers for that 4 AM feeding! Welcome to the "New Baby In The House Dance Party"! And now, while snookum's middle bottie is heating up, we're going to comfort him by walking him to a Merengue — and here we go!

Fine! Now suppose you Daddies and Mummies out there sit the next one out and feed your li'l darlins, while you watch the folks here do a Waltz as they feed the babies they've brought with them to the studio! Are you ready?
And-a... Gulp-two-three...
Gulp-two-three...

Okay, folks! Pick up that little sweetheart, and rest him on your shoulder... because it's time for the Burping Cha-Cha-Cha!

And here we go!
Pat...pat...cha-cha-cha!
Pat...pat...cha-cha-cha!

Here is the second clue! The fire is in a room which contains a lot of wires and (koff) cables! And here's our second call! Hello! — It's from Station House No. 44 — No, I'm sorry, the fire is not in the main office of the Phone Company!

Here (koff) is our third clue! The fire is raging in a soundproof room containing several (choke) television cameras! And another call is coming in — From Station House No. 61 —

What? You say the (gasp) fire is in our (koff) OWN STUDIOS??

Well, you're (choke-gagg) absolutely right! And you win the (koff-koff) big prize!

That's all for tonight, Firefighters! See you again tomorrow night (gakkk) — when we'll have a (koff-choke) new contest fire at a new location, and — I hope — a new producer!

Thanks, girls! You can go back to your flasks now, while I announce tonight's birthday greetings. Our congratulations this AM go to Charlie "Three-Fingers" McGraw, celebrating his 38th birthday. We understand that all his pals down at Harry's Bar have chipped in and bought him a surprise birthday gift: a new liver!

Remember, gang — time is running out on this week's special offer! Just two days left to send in a sample of your blood together with the labels from any five brands of gin! If the alcoholic content registers more than 65%, we'll send you this beautiful Martini mixer, plus an autographed copy of Dean Martin's liquor store bill, suitable for framing!

And now, for our next number — requested by Brenda Rafferty, who just broke her own crying jag record at the Staggeron Inn — here's Louis Burpp to sing that all-time favorite, "Your Eyes Said 90-Proof, Dear, But Your Heart Was Three-Point-Two!"

FOR OFFICE CLEANING LADIES...

It's 2 AM, and time to put down your mop, sit on your pail, and enjoy the office building cleaning lady's favorite show... "Gossiping With Gussie"! And here she is... the dirt-collector's dirt-collector... Gussie Froom!

Hello, dearies — and here is my first exclusive! Emma Frowzie, of the Venetian Blind Crew at Veeblefretzer Industries, found $6000 in the Assistant Treasurer's desk drawer this evening! Better you than he, Emma! Congratulations!

Flash! It's an electric floor waxer, for the Harry Snaveleys. He's night elevator man at Flicker and Waxing — She's Miss Wet Mop of 1957!

Memo to floor scrubber, V.G.! Your best friends won't tell you, but your pail is leaking!

And here's a tip to dry-mopper, B.L.! If you want to save your marriage, stay out of that fifth-floor broom closet with you-know-who...

EUROPE for Plumbers

If the pressure of your work (or lack of it) has you down, leave cares and worries behind and fly away with us on a fun-filled, whirlwind tour of Europe. You'll see a side of the Old World that few have known (or really bothered to discover)! You will gain a rare historical appreciation of your chosen profession by visiting the "wonders" of subterranean Europe. Your guides will all be outstanding members of the Continent's plumbing fraternity, eager to regale you with anecdotes and legends of sanitation heritages of the past. Here are highlights of our specially designed

ROME

As all roads do eventually, ours also leads to the "Eternal City"—with its fabled fountains that bring good luck if you throw coins into them. Here, you'll meet the people who have kept this ancient legend alive, and who've received all of the good luck—mainly the men who clean out them fountains!

VENICE

This ancient city is surely a "Plumber's Paradise" because every cellar is flooded. One of the truly inspiring sights is the famous unique Venetian garbage-disposal system which has worked so efficiently for centuries. See it in action!

VIENNA

You will thrill to the exhilarating strains of wonderful Viennese music, as our tour takes us under the cafes, theatres, and opera houses of this exciting "City of Culture". Situated on the banks of the majestic Danube River, where it empties its sewers, Vienna is a city you won't forget!

WITH SUSPENSE

THE SHAVER COMMERCIAL

WRITER: TOM KOCH

We're here at Grand Central Station to conduct another of our Sunscreen Shavemaster suspense tests. And this gentleman here has agreed to take part. Tell me, sir, how long ago did you shave?

As soon as my wife finally finished rinsing out her nylons in the bathroom, whenever that was!

Right now, the Sunscreen Shavemaster is getting at that hidden beard which your ordinary shaver would have missed!

I'm all agog to find out how many whiskers the Sunscreen Shavemaster collects. I can hardly wait till you open it!

Lemme see! Lemme see, quick! Show me how many whiskers from my hidden beard you're getting out of the Sunscreen Shavemaster! Have a heart!

Sorry, Pal—but I can't show you! This is a suspense commercial, and you'll just have to live with the suspense!

Folks—aren't you dying to know how well the Sunscreen Shavemaster gets at your hidden beard? Well, you're going to have to live in suspenseful agony, too . . . until you buy your own Sunscreen—and conduct this simple test for yourself!

I won't sleep a wink until I find out! You gotta show me! I think I may crack up!

THE "WHAT-IN-HECK-IS-IT?" COMMERCIAL

In keeping with our new policy of creating suspense, we're now putting out our useful product in unmarked boxes. This gentleman has just finished testing whatever-it-is, and I wonder if you'd tell us what you've discovered, sir?

Well, I couldn't see what it was, of course—but I found that it's instant flaking action brought faster relief! And, in addition, it made all my dainty washables whiter than white!

Yes, friends, and that's only part of the story! What about its ability to write on butter, sir?

Well, as I say, to keep the suspense, I wasn't allowed to see the product—but it sure felt like it was writing on butter! And, I might add, its penetrating action brought up to 12 hours of blessed relief!

And to heighten the suspense about our wonderful product, we've asked another volunteer—a housewife from our studio audience—to come up and help us with our demonstration. Just go ahead and crank it up, Ma'am . . .

It certainly is a useful product! I just wish I knew what it was!

Once again, the genuine mother-of-pearl handle has been wound up, bringing the patented spring action into play. And now, tell me, Madam, do you hear anything coming from inside the device?

Not a peep out of it! I've never lived with such suspense!

Yes, friends . . . the same result—in test after test! Aren't you convinced that no home should be without this amazing—er, thing?

It cured my unsightly blemishes, and helped me lose weight without going on a starvation diet! I'd give anything to know what it is!

I can't tell you what kind of a store to rush down to, because that would be a hint as to what the product is, folks! But you can end this unbearable suspense by shopping around and finding it for yourself! Just look for the beautiful blue, unmarked box—with the mother-of-pearl handle!

Believe me, I'd buy two—if I knew what they both were!

Dear Dr. Grepps

If any of you doctor-readers have questions about your profession you'd like answered, contact Dr. Grepps, care of this magazine. There will be a $5 charge for all questions brought to Dr. Grepps' office. However, if you'd like Dr. Grepps to visit your home to pick up your question, his fee is $10

Q. I don't know what's the matter with me lately. I've become awfully sloppy and forgetful. After sewing up my patients, I always seem to have some silly little thing left over. A liver, a gall bladder, a navel, things like that. This absent-mindedness on my part is very embarrassing to me. What should I do?

A. Lovelace, M.D.
Tacoma, Wash.

A. Use care and discretion. After each operation, have another physician or nurse double-check you. Then, if you still find yourself having things left over after operations, you owe it to yourself and to humanity to give up your career, and start writing authoritative medical articles for the Reader's Digest.

Q. I can't tell you how much I enjoyed "Seventy-Five Obnoxious Ways to Harass The Police With Your MD License Plates" by Dr. Norbett Noodnik in your August issue. His tips to other doctors on the art of parking in Restricted Zones, on sidewalks, and on Safety Islands while pretending to be on calls but actually attending poker sessions or going bowling were simply marvelous. What ever happened to Dr. Noodnik?

R. S. Bladder, M.D.
Lincoln, Neb.

A. Last week, Dr. Noodnik paid a house call to a patient across the street from his office, and he was arrested for jay-walking.

Q. I am planning to take a two-week vacation very shortly. Can you give me the names of some substitutes whom I can have cover for me and see my patients until I get back? Naturally, I wouldn't want these substitutes to be too good, since I'd hate to lose all my patients to them permanently and have no practice to come home to.

B. T. Salivate, M.D.
Madison, Wisc.

A. General Practitioners in your area usually rely upon the following three men to handle their practices when they are on vacation: Dr. Benjamin Oliver, % Oliver's Clinic for Parakeets; Mr. Hiram Blecher, % Blecher's Butcher Shop; and Mr. William "Shaky" Huntz, % Chapter 23 of Alcoholics Anonymous (if not there, try Barney's Bar and Grill).

Q. I am a young lady who reads your magazine occasionally. All my life, I've been told that doctors make the most desirable husbands. Well, I've gone out with several doctors, and I've found them to be so tied up in their profession that they know absolutely nothing about the world outside it. In reality, they are shallow, dull bores, and many of them can't even utter a simple, intelligent, grammatically-correct sentence.

Miss Coral Frost
New York City

A. I possibly cannot imagine, of all places, where this false impression, you got it from, at.

Q. I have just opened an office as a General Practitioner. Would you kindly advise me as to the correct rules to follow for referring patients to Specialists, no matter how minor their ailments are? Also, what is a fair kickback to expect from the specialist when I do this?

A. C. Hacklehead, M.D.
Atlanta, Ga.

A. Send all patients with complaints from the neck up to "Eye, Ear, Nose and Throat" Specialists. Refer all patients with ailments from the waist to the neck to "Heart Specialists." Send all patients with problems from the waist to the toes to "Chiropractors." Refer all patients with ailments in any other areas to "Veterinarians." Regarding your second question, a fair kickback fee is 25% of the Specialist's regular fee, or whatever else you can wheedle out of him—whichever is higher.

Q. I am a nice, middle-aged lady who absolutely adores the ground my doctor walks upon. I mean, as far as I'm concerned, he can do no wrong. He is kind, and good, and intelligent. Sometimes, I don't believe he's real. To me, he's like a brilliant, happy sun shining down on a dark sick world. I'm planning to write a book about him. Can you suggest a title?

Mrs. P. K. Kimball,
Portland, Me.

A. How about "My Doctor, The Sun"?

Q. What is the all-time record for a General Practitioner turning simple phone inquiries into expensive visits to his office?

J. L. Jukes, M.D.
Roanoke, Va.

A. In one week during 1958, Dr. Harry Gideons, of Passaic, N.J., convinced 71 people who phoned him to come to his office. They included: 28 people with minor colds; 18 people with slight headaches; a representative from a TV survey asking him what program he was watching; his wife, whom he only charged half-fee; a kidnapper, asking ransom for the doctor's son; and 22 wrong numbers.

Meet... Selwyn Abisch

Every month, MEDICAL ILLUSTRATED presents another citizen who most closely typifies the average American patient. Our patient this month is Selwyn Abisch, of Tulsa, Oklahoma. Here is the day in Mr. Abisch's life which made him the typical American Patient for September.

MEDICAL ILLUSTRATED'S "Patient of the Month"

Mr. Abisch arrived at the office of Dr. Donald Fleespit at 10:00 AM for his annual check-up. While thumbing through such typical doctor's waiting room publications as Liberty, Colliers' and Poor Richard's Almanac, his shoes were stepped on by 12 screaming kids.

At 12:00 Noon, Mr. Abisch was ushered into Small Examination No. 1 by the nurse, where he was told to remove all his clothes. Unknown to Abisch, Dr. Fleespit sneaked into Small Examination Room No. 2 to avoid him and another patient in Small Examination Room No. 3.

At 1:00 PM, Abisch was led into Small Examination Room No. 2 by the same nurse. In the nick of time, Dr. Fleespit avoided Abisch by sneaking back into Small Examination Room No. 1. The patient in Small Examination Room No. 3, meanwhile, was moved up a notch to Small Examination Room No. 4.

At 2:15 PM, Abisch was ushered into Small Examination Room No. 3. In this room, Abisch bumped into a female patient, also completely undressed, who immediately fled to Small Examination Room No. 5. Meanwhile, Dr. Fleespit avoided both of them, and twelve other patients, by sneaking into Small Examination Room No. 6.

At 4:30, still undressed and yet to be examined, Abisch was ushered through another door. This one led to Large Examination Room No. 7 — also known as "The Street". Here, due to overexposure, Abisch caught double pneumonia.

At 8:00 PM, Dr. Fleespit paid a house call on Abisch, and picked up twice the fee he would have gotten had Abisch been able to trap him into an examination in his office. Which is what Dr. Fleespit was angling for all day.

Why are Dr. George Floobush and his lovely nurse, Goldie, staying after office hours these days, hmmm? They claim it's to forge X-ray photos for Dr. Floobush's booming phony accident insurance business. But WE know differently, don't we? . . . There wasn't a dry eye at the Ritz-Neuman Hotel last Friday night when the very, very busy Dr. Fenwick Zemmst was introduced to his lovely wife, Hermione, during their 15th wedding anniversary celebration. Many, many more happy years of bliss, you two!

This year's annual $5000 AMA award for the "Best Definition of Socialized Medicine" goes to Dr. Thomas Thuggins, of Concord, N. H. Dr. Thuggins' prize-winning definition: "Socialized Medicine is when you have to charge a patient less than $25 for a one-minute office visit." How true! How true!

* * * *

Confidential to Dr. F. H.: You're new in the profession, so perhaps you can be excused for the horrible way you botched up your bill to Ferdinand Muffty. In the future, try to remember that when your patient has Blue Shield, you automatically add at least $100 to your regular exorbitant fee!

Doctor Ira Ossified, of Los Angeles, Cal. being broken from physician to intern by Dr. Paul Heaps, officer of the AMA. Dr. Ossified's waiting room was found to contain a copy of the National Geographic which was less than eight years old.

Send a "Cheer-up Note" to Dr. Gary Skegg, of Salt Lake City, Utah. He made less than $35,000 last year!

Dr. and Mrs. Thurston Biffle shopping for drapes at Saks Fifth Avenue. (This unimportant news item was inserted solely as a favor to Mrs. Biffle, the status-seeking physician's wife. She still can't get over how the thrilling words "Dr. and Mrs." sound!) . . . Dr. Paul Whistfield, of Nashville, Tenn., will never live down the embarrassing thing that happened to him in his office last week. While being paid a surprise visit by his friend, Dr. Kevin Portside, Dr. Whistfield was caught red-handed actually trying to READ one of the 800 medical books he keeps on display to impress his patients. It's the best laugh the medical profession has had in years!

In commemoration of "Work Hand-In-Hand With

Your Local Pharmacist Month," the AMA is sponsoring a series of closed-circuit TV lectures. Purpose is to overcome the dreadful habit too many patients have of using up left-over $30-an-ounce drugs from one illness, for another illness a few weeks later — instead of buying a new batch. Next Tuesday's lecture will be entitled, "Prescribing Expensive Drugs Which Must Be Used Up In 24 Hours Or They Lose All Their Potency."

Mrs. Herman Hemprope, of Newark, New Jersey, and her marriage-hungry daughter, Bernice, returning from a very successful 2-week vacation at the Hotel Zilch-Plaza, in Ferndale, New York.

Fun-loving Dr. Michael Compain is at it again! That crazy, waggish nut is convulsing doctors and nurses at Westside Maternity Hospital these days with his latest antics. Get this: Mike is running through the wards where momentarily-expecting mothers are confined, shouting, "All right! Somebody get me plenty of cold water and dirty sheets!" Don't ever lose that sense of humor, Mike . . . it's worth a million dollars!

* * * *

Because of the business recession, I've just learned that the AMA Lobby in Washington will be cut drastically. Starting this Fall, the Lobby will be operating in the nation's capital with a skeleton force of only 55,000 men!

* * * *

Four-year-old Ronnie Goulart's announcement in this column last month that he was planning on entering Medical School in 1980 brought only 106,927 marriage proposals from mothers of three-year-old girls. Perhaps the recent bad weather around the country delayed the rest of the mail! . . . How about dropping a line to another lonely physician fighting for Uncle Sam? I'm referring, of course, to Dr. Harry Pepper, of White Plains, N. Y. The 24-year-old Dr. Pepper typifies the American physician who must give up a comfortable and lucrative practice to struggle through the ranks of the rugged U.S. Army. Address all mail to: Brig. Gen. Harold Pepper, U.S. Medical Corps, Special Assignment, Waldorf-Astoria Hotel, New York City.

SAMPLE NO. 1

MARTIN KLUTTS

As you can see, Dr. Martin Klutts, of Lincoln, Neb., has an extremely forceful and precise handwriting. Note the bold "u's," the sturdy "s," and the crisp "p" in the above words "cough syrup." They indicate a strong personality, one which would have the courage to charge as much as $50.00 for filling out a child's school check-up form. More chicken-hearted physicians with weaker "h's" and "y's" than those shown in example above, wouldn't dare to charge more than $35.00.

ASPIRIN

Observe the way Dr. Kenneth Dibbler, of Dover, Del., clips and chops his words. Pay particular attention to the clear, but abruptly cut word "Aspirin." Dr. Dibbler undoubtedly loves to slice things, especially human tissue. His steady and well-rounded "p" however (above) tells me that he is a fine surgeon. I'd wager that at least two out of the three patients he operates on for athlete's foot survive.

cold tablets

We had intended to feature a sample of the prescription handwriting of Dr. David Pferd, of Dallas, Tex., but unfortunately we were unable to find anything he has written, except for the above unintelligent, illegible gibberish. It is naturally impossible to analyze this kind of scribbling, since it makes no sense. I strongly believe the above are some scratch lines the doctor made while testing a new ball-point pen.

TEST YOUR BEDSIDE MANNER

As every physician knows, a good bedside manner is one of the most important qualities of modern medical practice. To improve yours, every issue we present a hypothetical case. Study it carefully, then decide how you would treat it with good bedside manner, and check your answer against the correct procedure indicated below.

This patient has just fallen off the roof of an 8-story building. He was dragged into his bed screaming in pain, and suffering from 114 broken bones, several crushed ribs, internal injuries, and several forms of concussion. What is the first thing you should do upon entering his room?

Answer: Sit down on a chair next to his bed, take out a long sheet of paper, remove your pen from your pocket, unscrew the cap, and ask him if he has ever had measles, mumps, chicken pox, whooping cough, scarlet fever, acne, and ninety-eight other irrelevant childhood diseases.

Fill Your Doctor's Bag With Fancy Useless Gadgets AND IMPRESS YOUR PATIENTS!

Let's face it, Docs! Outside of a stethoscope and a few throat sticks, what else do you need for a house call? Not very much! But you can't visit a patient with a practically empty Doctor's Bag! How would it look? And how much could you charge? Now, you can fill your bag with a dazzling array of complicated gadgets to impress patients and make them receptive to those exorbitant fees—with a

MAD's AUTO

ARTIST: JOE ORLANDO

Game No. 1

"LOW BRIDGE"

Rules

1. Have Daddy pile all luggage and other paraphernalia on top of car.
2. At each underpass, make game of guessing whether clearance is enough to get through.
3. If car gets through, hide disappointment by singing Druid madrigals.
4. If luggage gets knocked off and goes splattering down highway, all clap hands and shout "Well, you can't win 'em all!"
5. While Daddy tries to retrieve scattered luggage, have Mommy appoint team captain to flag down approaching cars.
6. Other players run up and down line of waiting cars, encouraging drivers to blow their horns impatiently at Daddy.
7. As horn honking reaches crescendo, all make guesses on how soon Daddy will begin to cry.
8. Player making closest guess gets to sign Daddy into Rest Home.

Game No. 2

"READ THE SIGNS"

Rules

1. Mommy selects two team captains to read aloud all billboard signs on both sides of the highway.
2. When team captain reads "See living reptiles at Irving's Jungle Zoo!", others clap hands in unison and whine, "We wanna stop at Irving's Jungle Zoo!"
3. When team captain reads "Genuine pralines at Flunky's — 4 miles!", others bounce on seat and scream, "We want pralines from Flunky's!"
4. When team captain reads "Authentic Indian curios at Emile's Teepee just ahead!", others pound driver's head and shriek, "We want authentic Indian curios!"
5. When team captain reads "Clean rest rooms at Eddie's Esso Station!", others break into tears and whimper piteously, "We want clean rest rooms!"
6. Object of game is to see how long driver can hold out before turning around, going home, and spending balance of vacation sitting on front porch.

Game No. 3

"HIKE, DADDY, HIKE"

Rules

1. Before trip begins, all scamper to garage and adjust gas gauge so it reads half full when tank is empty.
2. Daddy, chosen to be "it" because he is only one not in on secret, runs out of gas on lonely stretch of highway.
3. As car sputters to a stop, all clap hands three times and shout "Surprise!"
4. Make game of deciding which way Daddy should walk to reach nearest filling station.
5. Player who talks Daddy into walking in wrong direction wins right to open box lunch as soon as he leaves.
6. While enjoying lunch, all make guesses on how long it will take Daddy to return.
7. Player with closest guess wins right to tell Daddy he missed lunch.
8. All join in merriment of trying to contain Daddy while he has his temper tantrum.

Game No. 4

"BROWNIES AND ELVES"

Rules

1. Before trip, Mommy divides children into two teams, the "Brownies" and the "Elves".
2. Brownies all skip to garage and adjust speedometer so it always reads 20 MPH slower than car is actually traveling.
3. Elves, to gain equal points, must sneak Daddy's driver's license out of his wallet and destroy it.
4. On trip, when patrol car begins chasing Daddy, both teams gleefully shout that speedometer shows that they are within speed limit, so cops must be chasing somebody else.
5. Mommy picks homeliest child to make faces at cops out of back window.
6. When police overtake Daddy, and he cannot produce driver's license, all form circle and chant, "Shame on Daddy! Shame on Daddy!"
7. Player adjudged best chanter gets to tell cops that Daddy had a driver's license but it was revoked for speeding.
8. All gather round and wave good-bye to Daddy as he leaves for 90 days.

Ever since the end of World War II, it has been considered quite stylish for Americans to adopt some of the traditions of Oriental culture — such as Judo, Zen Bhuddism, Sukiaki, and Horn-Rimmed Glasses. The latest Japanese import is a rugged form of physical combat in which the participants employ ancient and respected Oriental techniques, like slapping, kicking, biting, eye-gouging and rabbit-punching. In other words — fighting dirty! This sport is known as

Despite its violent appearance, the true goal of Karate lies in achieving a state of absolute calm and serenity.

In the cloistered tranquility of Tokyo "Dojos," Karate disciples spend long hours in philosophical discussions.

Students claim this ancient art is an opportunity to contemplate nature at close range — like f'rinstance, stars!

Actually, serious students of Karate will rarely engage in physical combat with one another, preferring to test their highly-developed skills on inanimate objects instead, such as boards, rocks, and nails. This is partially because they do not wish to inflict injury on another living being, but mainly because boards, rocks, and nails can't fight back!

"I KNOW I CAN DO IT . . . THEREFORE I CAN DO IT!" By firmly in his mind, the Karate student is capable of performing incredible feats of strength and physical prowess.

Before attempting to split the anvil with his bare hand, Karate student prepares himself for the feat psychologically.

Sufficiently confident of capability, Karate student brings edge of his hand down sharply, splitting anvil in two.

Closer examination of shattered pieces reveals WHY Karate student knew that he could split anvil in two all along.

As with many other Oriental rites, the prelude to a Karate exhibition involves traditional rituals, including chants and incantations, burning of incense, scattering of salt to the four winds, and taking side bets. Below, we see a part of the elaborate ceremony performed by a student prior to driving a nail through a 4-inch plank with his bare foot.

Karate student first scatters rice on ground. This ritual signifies manhood.

Student then covers the rice with salt, signifying strength and determination.

Student then eats the rice with salt, signifying Karate don't pay very good.

Student next performs series of low bows to each point of compass. Not only does this ritual symbolize humility, but also helps him find any grains of rice he may have missed.

Close study of hands reveals ancient Oriental expression of student's inner confidence.

Closer study of hands reveals ancient Occidental expression — thrown in for good measure.

At the start of the actual feat, the student must remember to "kime" all of his strength into the point of his toe.

When the force of the blow drives the nail through the mahogany board, the student must remember to ignore pain.

When nail turns out to be wrong one, student must remember to take pedicure before he tries next Karate exhibition.

One of the reasons for the upsurge of interest in Karate is that many practical uses may be found for this ancient

CAPITOL PUNISHMENT DEPT.

Some of the most exciting and liveliest new shows on Television this past season were John Kennedy's Presidential Press Conferences. Not only were these programs informative and entertaining, but they also out-Trendexed every other show on the air at the time! Mainly because they were carried by all the networks—and nothing else was on! But suppose only one TV network agreed to carry this show, and it had to compete against other informative and entertaining programs like "The Tab Hunter Show." In order to capture that elusive top-Trendex rating, it would have to develop a popular and acceptable format . . . probably as a regular night time television offering. And then we'd be seeing something like this . . .

ARTIST: MORT DRUCKER
WRITER: GARY BELKIN

"From Washington, D.C.—

THE JACK KENNEDY SHOW

with tonight's guests: Franklin D. Roosevelt, Jr.,
Bobby Kennedy, Harry Truman and his Democratic
Orchestra . . . and yours truly, Ed Murrow . . .

And now . . . here's Jack . . ."

Thank you! Thank you!
And hello out there in
"New Frontiersland!"

Before I read my usual opening statement, I'd like to tell you a funny thing my little daughter, Caroline, said today. We were having breakfast, and I asked Jackie what she thought of my new "Space Program"—and Caroline piped up with "What channel is it on, Daddy?"

READY ON CAMERA TWO,
CURTIS!

JOEY—MOVE
IN ON ONE!

ALL RIGHT,
SAMMY—
PUT THE
GUN DOWN
ALREADY!

I just love the things young kids say! That's why I have my little brother, Bobby, around!

But now, I'd like to introduce my orchestra leader, a great guy, with a great sense of humor . . . that old Missouri mule, with a stubborn streak to match, Harry Truman! Harry's going to open the show with my favorite song: "How You Gonna Keep 'Em Down On The Farm After They've Seen Parity?"

WHERE'S
PETER LAWFORD
WITH THAT CLOSE-UP?

Doesn't Harry play beautifully, Ed? You know, every time I hear that song, I want to cry ... for the farmers!

Tell me, is there a "Mystery Relative" for me to identify tonight?

We did have a "Mystery Relative," Jack, but he didn't show up. Which is just as well, because he's someone that nobody in the country would have recognized. As a matter of fact, tonight's "Mystery Relative" would have been harder for this country to recognize than Red China!

Oh, Ed! You've been reading Adlai's joke book again! Just who was this "Mystery Relative" that no one has ever seen?

Your Father!

You know, pal, you could easily be replaced ... by Fulton Lewis, Jr.! Another remark like that, Ed, and I won't let you pose for your picture on that stamp!

And now, folks, it's time to meet a real lovable character, that old son of the "Big Gun," and I hope he's not loaded tonight, Frankie Roosevelt, Jr.!

Hello, there, Johnny! I got a letter from Momma!

Momma writes: "Dear Sprinter!"

She calls me "Sprinter" because she's always wanted me to run for something! Get it, Johnny?

Not really! But the audience seemed to like it!

Those are MY people!

Well, go on ... give us more from Mount ADA ...

"Uncle Tom Dewey"—(Remember him?)—"dropped by the house yesterday and announced that the Republican Party will petition Washington for Emergency Federal Aid—as a "Depressed Area"!"

Hmmmm!

That's a good one, eh, Johnny?

Let's see. She says, "Now that 'Curlylocks'"—(that's you!)—"has appointed all his young friends to the Administration, you'd think he might invite me to the White House in some official capacity—say, as "Den Mother!"

Heh-heh! Boy, that Momma sure is funny, ain't she, Johnny ... ?

I'll tell you one thing! She's a lot funnier than she was last Summer in Los Angeles! And that goes for our orchestra leader, too!

Theme ... Harry!

DADDY-- WILL I STILL BE INVITED ON THE SULLIVAN SHOW?

JACK WILL BE

When are you going to do another "SPECIAL"?

Well, I've been talking to the Networks, and they've promised that if I can arrange to get elected again, they'll star me in another "Inauguration"!

Last year, you worked on TV with some guy named Nixon. How come we never see him on television any more?

I understand he's hard at work trying to get a show of his own, to replace this one in nineteen-sixty-four!

ISN'T HE A LOVELY BOY?

No, seriously... Dick is a great guy—and if you don't believe me, just ask Nelson Rockefeller!

Tell us, Jack... what are you really like?

I'm just like I look—only handsomer!

By the way, tomorrow is Friday night, so we're going to show "The Best of Me"! And next week, we're going to have some really special guests! We're going to have some people from the Berlitz School of Languages translate our Immigration Laws—into English!... and that little girl with the French accent we all love so dearly—my wife!... that great comic of stage, screen and the UN—Adlai Stevenson!... and maybe, if we're lucky, we might get Jack Paar!

Theme... Harry...

I WILL AUTOPURGE TEN AMM CHARGE ACCOUNTS TO AFRICA!

PEACE CORP '61

TO COME!

Incidentally, folks, Jackie and I almost didn't get here tonight—because we couldn't find a baby-sitter. But at the last minute, we found a nice, respectable old couple with nothing to do—the Eisenhowers!

By the way, Jack! I think the audience should know that you've just been given the "Seal of Approval" by the Editors of "GOOD WHITEHOUSEKEEPING"!

When something like this happens, I—(sniff) get all choked up! I've been—(sniff)—so lucky! But, I want you to know, it's not me—it's the people on my staff who've really won this award!

Of course, I discovered them all!

In fact, I'd like to introduce one of them now. America knows him as its Attorney-General... but I know him like a brother! Ladies and gentlemen—the boy everybody but Jimmy Hoffa loves—Robert Kennedy!

And I thought you called me down here for a game of Touch Football!

Incidentally, Jack—I don't want to complain over the air, but I've been having trouble with the Secretary of Defense! He's been so "bossy" at Cabinet meetings lately that people are beginning to call us "MacNamara's Band"!

Hey, that's my joke! I had it in a letter from Momma last week!

How come you don't run for something instead of just resting on the laurels of a great name in politics?

When you stop doing the same thing!

Oh, yeah...?

Yeah!

Now, boys—let's stop acting like New York Democrats!

I understand that situation is coming up before the Security Council tomorrow!

Not if you can get an indictment in first!

When did I lose control of the show?

In the interest of morale—this show will definitely not be shown to our Armed Forces overseas! Good night... and good luck!

There must be an easier way of making a living!
